Preface:

Rays of electro radiation from some where in outer space made its way pass our earth's atmosphere. Much of the electro radiation rays, passed the earth's atmosphere by, but the earth's own gravity force pulled a percentage of the electro radiation rays downward. The invisible rays made their way down to earth throughout the world. Its rays extended and reach all the corners of the earth.

Scientists were aware of this situation, but none could predict the full extent of the out comings these rays would have on the world and its people. The rays made there way down towards the earths surface. Most of them dissolved into the ocean, the earth, mountains, plant life, animals, and had little or no effect. The reaction of the rays on humans was quite different.

If the rays came into contact with a human, a painless chemical chain of reactions took place. The electro radiation dissolved into the homosapien's body and genetically altered the DNA. This reaction caused a change in the person's body. Some changes were simple; others would change the person's life forever. The reaction could change a person appearance, or might give them the ability to poses wondrous "powers." No one knows for sure the full extent of these changes, or how many people around the world were affect by this, but one thing is certain, there will be a great change in society and its people throughout the world.
